Crash Drive To Create Jobs Detailed

Details of a crash, short-range program to get work for the hard-core unemployed in Oakland's poverty pockets were disclosed formally yesterday by the U.S. Department of Labor.

The Tribune reported exclusively on Feb. 9 that such a program was in the offing for Oakland and 18 other American cities, including San Francisco and Los Angeles.

Between $10 million and $15 million is expected to be scraped together for the program in the three cities to be spent between May and December, government officials said.

The money will come, they said, from reserve and recaptured funds previously allocated to anti-poverty programs for this fiscal year and from new appropriations requested by President Johnson from Congress yesterday.

Oakland was selected for participation in the crash program, the officials explained, because a special census conducted last summer by the Survey Research Center at the University of California disclosed that the unemployment rate in four target areas of the city — West Oakland, North Oakland, Fruitvale and East Oakland — was 13.1 per cent of the work force.

The survey showed that Oakland's city-wide unemployment rate averaged out to eight per cent. The San Francisco-Oakland labor market area rate was 4.3 per cent last month.

Plans for alleviating Oakland's severe unemployment problem were revealed at a press conference in the Hotel Leamington by Kenneth C. Robertson, regional representative for Labor Secretary W. Willard Wirtz; Don Roney, special representative of the Labor Department's manpower administrator, and Howard B. Swartz of the city planning staff.

Robertson explained that the resources of several federal agencies — the Departments of Labor and Health, Education and Welfare; Office of Economic Opportunity; Economic Development Administration, and Housing and Urban Redevelopment — will be thrown into the effort.

One agency, the Manpower Administration in the Labor Department, has been designated for development and funding centralization, Robertson said.

The program differs from previous anti-poverty efforts in that smaller areas of concentration (150,000 or fewer population) have been selected for targets, so that results can be more readily evaluated, and more supportive services will be supplied so that the person placed in a job is followed up.

Persons, who for one reason or another have been chronically unemployed, will be sought out and placed in jobs either as trainees with private employers or as aides with

Continued Page 3, Col. 2

Oakland Tribune

A RESPONSIBLE METROPOLITAN NEWSPAPER

94th YEAR, NO. 75 — ES THURSDAY, MARCH 16, 1967 — 10¢ DAILY, $2.25 A MONTH

GOP 'Revolt' Over State Job Slashes

By ED SALZMAN
Tribune Capital Bureau

SACRAMENTO—Gov. Ronald Reagan today faces a wholesale revolt by Republicans in the legislature over his plan to fire 2,632 state workers during the next 15 months.

GOP members of the Senate and Assembly are furious because the administration did not consult with any of them before revealing the major cutbacks in the state mental hospitals.

Reagan's executive secretary, Phillip Battaglia, who announced the firings, was hailed before an angered Assembly Republican caucus yesterday.

"We read him the riot act," reported one GOP leader. "The governor has a wholesale revolt on his hands."

Three top Republicans — Robert T. Monagan of Tracy, minority leader; John G. Veneman of Modesto, chairman of the Revenue and Taxation Committee, and Gordon W. Duffy of Hanford, Public Health Committee chairman — walked out on Battaglia to register their protest against the administration action.

The Republicans appear split about the advisability of the firings, but are unanimous in criticizing the lack of communication between the governor's office and the legislature.

Assemblyman James W. Dent, D-Concord, said he feels that the cutbacks are "probably justified on a basis of patient load in the state hospitals."

But he added: "Nobody — even the leadership in the mental health field — knew what was going on."

Assemblyman Frank Lanterman, R-La Canada, who heads the Assembly subcommittee reviewing the mental health budget, said he learned about the cutback by reading the newspapers and still had not been briefed 24 hours after the announcement.

Sen. Clair Burgener, R-San Diego, former president of the California Association on Mental Retardation, called the administration action "unfortunate."

Sen. John F. McCarthy,

Continued Page 7, Col. 5

Because She Cared

Three days ago George Burleson's little girl, Allyson, 5, died in a Toronto, Canada, hospital. At a special service for Allyson last night in Toronto, Burleson kneels to talk to Linda Sansome, 6, then hugs her as he cries. Allyson, 5, died following an operation in December to correct a heart defect. Linda was one of many who offered condolences to the Burlesons at the service. The Burlesons reside at 4189 Berrymore Drive, San Jose.—(AP)

Reds From Cambodia Hit Yanks

SAIGON (UPI) — North Vietnamese troops swarmed out of Cambodia today and attacked a company of U.S. infantrymen in a battle that grew in scope and intensity during the day. American reinforcements were rushed to the scene by helicopter.

A U.S. military spokesman said the Communist troops were part of an elite North Vietnamese division that had infiltrated into the Cambodian border region 220 miles northeast of Saigon. He also disclosed a fourth North Vietnamese division had moved into the demilitarized zone (DMZ) between North and South Vietnam.

The air war increased in intensity, and Royal Australian Air Force planes, in action for the first time, unveiled a fiery new technique. They dropped barrels of gasoline into Viet Cong positions and then set them on fire with tracer bullets from helicopters.

An Australian cruiser went into action for the first time yesterday.

B52 strategic bombers struck near the former imperial capital of Hue in three successive predawn raids aimed at countering the North Vietnamese buildup near the northern frontier.

Communists reeling under a series of U.S. ground sweeps retaliated with three more mortar attacks on U.S. and South Vietnamese positions in widely scattered areas.

In one attack guerrillas opened up with mortars on a command post of the 196th Light Infantry Brigade just before midnight yesterday in War Zone C 70 miles northwest of Saigon, wounding 16 GIs with 30 rounds. Artillery and armed helicopters drove off the Reds.

In another, guerrillas fired 50 mortar rounds and 25 rounds of 75 millimeter recoilless rifle fire into the Ca Chi base camp of the 25th Infantry Division just 25 miles northwest of Saigon, wounding 22 Americans. Fireships and artillery drive off the attackers. The Communists mortared and overran a Vietnamese government rural development team of between 40 and 50 men and bombarded the town of Chuong Thien, wrecking the city hall that is the symbol of Saigon rule there.

Guam Meet To Cover All War Angles

By RAYMOND LAWRENCE
Foreign News Analyst

When the President went to Honolulu 13 months ago for a conference of his top advisers White House aides sought to give the impression that the meeting was routine.

The same notion was advanced in connection with the Manila conference.

Both resulted in major decisions that stepped-up the war in Vietnam.

Now, the Guam conference next week is billed as a routine little get-together, but, in the context of current events, it will be anything but.

It will bring together President Johnson (whose crossing of the Pacific Ocean can scarcely be considered routine) and his most highly placed advisers.

These include not only the retiring Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge but also his replacement Ellsworth Bunker, the President's top crisis diplomat, who has shown remarkable judgment and skill as a negotiator.

It also is significant that eight of the highest South Vietnam officials, including Premier Ky and Chief of State Thieu, will be present on Monday.

Among the others are the Defense Minister and Chief of the Joint General Staff, the Minister of Information and Open Arms (the program to attract Viet Cong defectors), the Pacification Minister, the Governor of Banks, the Foreign Minister, and the ambassador to the United States.

This means that all facets of the Vietnam situation, including the military, civic action, psychological warfare and aid relations, will be on the agenda.

Bunker's presence and his unusual talents are significant in light of South Vietnam's change from a military regime to a constitutional government, which now is in process. Obviously, this will form a part of the Guam discussions.

The composition of the conference delegations indicates that, aside from the military battle, the all-important pacification program to bring the

Continued Page 3, Col. 1

TOSSED MATCH

Cripple's Hopes Go Up in Smoke

RICHMOND — A match tossed by a thoughtless boy sent the livelihood and dreams of a crippled Richmond man up in smoke yesterday.

Paul Gardner, 45, of 2205 Hellings Ave., 90 per cent disabled by polio, had parked his new popcorn truck across from Juan Crespi Junior High School in El Sobrante, waiting for school to let out.

The truck was on a slope and he hadn't noticed that fuel was leaking from the gasoline tank and running down the gutter.

But a 13-year-old boy coming out of school had noticed.

He struck a match and, despite the protests of a companion, gave it a flip.

Flames shot along the gutter toward the truck and completely enveloped it. Several of the children screamed a warning to Gardner, who barely managed to grab his crutches and scramble to safety.

He made a futile effort to fight the blaze, which was so hot it melted the aluminum window frames, then stood helplessly and watched.

For two years he had saved to buy the truck. Friends and relatives had spent hours helping him equip and stock it.

It was his only means of in-

Continued Page 7, Col. 4

Forgeries Blamed on Dodd Aide

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A top handwriting expert today described Sen. Thomas J. Dodd's chief accuser as a master forger who could have signed 39 checks figuring in the investigation of the Connecticut Democrat's conduct.

Charles Andrew Appel Jr., retired FBI specialist who figured in the Lindbergh kidnapping case, told the Senate Ethics Committee that former aide Michael V. O'Hare could forge Dodd's signature so well that "any bank would accept it."

O'Hare is one of the chief witnesses against Dodd, who is accused of pocketing campaign funds for his own use, double and triple billing for air fares, and being engaged in conflict of interest.

Appel was not asked by Dodd's attorney, John F. Sonnett, who did sign the disputed checks. That point went unexplored when committee counsel Benjamin R. Fern asked no questions at all of the white-haired, bespectacled handwriting expert who used blown-up photographs of real and forged signatures to illustrate his testimony.

Sonnett told the committee at one point:

"I propose to show that O'Hare told the truth in respect to a number of money orders he said he forged; that contrary to what he claimed he was a very excellent forger; and that he lied under oath

Continued Page 3, Col. 2

'JFK Death Plot' Witness Says He Was Hypnotized

Compiled from AP and UPI

NEW ORLEANS — Perry Raymond Russo, the "confidential informant" who identified businessman Clay L. Shaw as a conspirator against President Kennedy, testified today he was hypnotized three times this year at the direction of Dist. Atty. Jim Garrison.

The 25-year-old Baton Rouge, La., insurance salesman said the sessions took place "somewhere between Feb. 24 and March 12."

Russo returned to the witness stand today for more grueling cross-examination at the hands of F. Irvin Dymond, attorney for Shaw, whom Russo accused of conspiring to kill Kennedy in 1963.

Russo claims Shaw, Oswald and pilot David W. Ferrie plotted Kennedy's assassination in New Orleans two months before Kennedy was shot to death in Dallas Nov. 22, 1963.

Russo said he was hypnotized some time after he reported for the first time to Garrison's office Feb. 17 but could not "recollect" whether all three sessions were in the Orleans Parish (county) coroner's office.

He said the hypnosis was conducted by Dr. Esmond A. Fatter under the supervision of coroner Nicholas J. Chetta.

Russo said repeatedly he could not recall specific dates or events concerning the hypnosis and could not remember what he talked about with the hypnotist.

Presumably, Russo was hypnotized to determine whether he was telling the truth about attending a party in Ferrie's apartment in mid-September of 1963 at which he said he heard Ferrie, Oswald and Shaw do the plotting.

A New Orleans grand jury also resumed today its own investigation of the assassination—or perhaps Garrison's probe of it. The grand jury subpoenaed two men, including attorney Dean Andrews who once told the Warren Commission he was approached to defend Oswald the day after the assassination.

Russo testified yesterday he was not able to identify Oswald as the "Leon Oswald" he knew in New Orleans as Ferrie's roommate and one of the conspirators until an artist

Continued Page 7, Col. 1

Consular Treaty Voted, Goes to LBJ

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate today approved the long-pending consular treaty with Russia designed to protect American travelers and foster better East-West relations.

The vote was 66 to 28. This was 3 votes more than the two-thirds majority required for approval.

The pact now goes to President Johnson for his final U.S. approval.

Senate approval took on importance beyond the treaty's contents because it came in the midst of the Vietnam war despite domestic protest against Russian aid to North Vietnam. Mail against the agreement, much of it organized by the conservative liberty lobby, had been flooding in for weeks.

The Administration's victory, far from certain at the outset, was obtained after eight days of Senate debate during which six proposed restrictions to the treaty were rejected.

These included one amendment to the text itself, four reservations and one "understanding." The Administration claimed any one of these might have provoked Soviet rejection.

WEATHER, INDEX ON PAGE 2

State Squishes as Gale Lets Up

Gale winds and heavy rains hit most of the state last night and early today, causing widespread rock slides and mudslides, a train derailment, local flooding and a power failure throughout Northern California.

On San Francisco Bay an 8-year-old boy adrift on a disabled power cruiser watched in horror as his father was sucked beneath the water trying to swim to his aid.

The violent storm began to diminish today.

The brief power blackout, which affected all of Northern California from Alameda County and San Francisco to the Oregon border, was caused by the failure at 4:28 a.m. of a 230,000-volt transmission line between Marysville and Sacramento.

Service was restored eight minutes later, but not before the interruption had triggered burglar alarms in several cities.

Other local power failures were reported, including a one hour and 15-minute outage to 600 Pacific Gas and Electric Co. customers in Pleasanton. A company spokesman said the blackout was caused by a fallen power line at Valley and Black Avenues.

Winds up to 60 miles per hour were reported around the Bay last night as the storm dumped more than an inch of rain on most Bay Area cities.

Steven Peterson, 8, was rescued from a power cruiser adrift off Richmond Harbor last night, but his father was still missing today. He was presumed drowned.

The Coast Guard said James Peterson, a Marine engine repairman, of 726 22nd St., Richmond, left San Rafael in the 28-foot cruiser Likki Tiki about 4:30 p.m., towing a 26-foot cruiser. He was bound for Richmond.

His son, alone in the second boat, told Coast Guardsmen the tow line broke in the high wind and choppy seas. Peterson jumped into the water, tried unsuccessfully to reconnect the line, and was drawn underwater by a large wave as he swam toward the other boat to reach his son.

The two drifting cruisers were spotted about 7 p.m. by Standard Oil Co. wharfmaster James Wilson, who dispatched a tugboat to offer assistance.

Tug Capt. Peter Cairo found Steven aboard the 26-footer. He took the boy aboard the tug and radioed the Coast Guard, which searched for Peterson with two boats and a helicopter until 3:15 a.m.

The search was resumed today in the area of the Bay between the Golden Gate, Richmond-San Rafael and Bay Bridges.

The apparent drowning victim was a former auto mechanic who operated his engine repair service at the Pacific Boat Works in Richmond two months ago.

He also is survived by his widow, Sue Peterson, and two other sons, Scott, 6, and Frank, 1.

Near Dunsmuir a 39-car Southern Pacific freight train hit a rockslide, dumping one Diesel locomotive into the Sacramento River.

No one was injured in the accident, which occurred about 3 a.m. near the small community of Castella.

The engine unit which

Continued Page 2, Col. 3

small world

SOMEWHERE, BEHIND ALL THAT, THERE'S A STAR