EBMUD May Add Sylvan Parcel to Briones

By FRED GARRETSON

ORINDA—The East Bay Municipal Utility District is considering buying an exceptionally scenic parcel of land on a peninsula jutting into Briones Reservoir to keep an Orinda physician from building a large mansion there.

Officials said if the property is not purchased by EBMUD, the mansion probably would be the only urban intrusion into the rural Briones Reservoir.

The 3.5-acre parcel is on the north side of Bear Creek Road on a hilltop shelf of land which drops down steeply on three sides into the reservoir.

EBMUD officials said the property is owned by Wayne A. Littlejohn. Dr. Richard A. Morton, of Orinda, has an option to purchase the land.

Officials said Dr. Morton proposes to build a six-home subdivision on the south side of Bear Creek Road and would build the mansion on the north side of the road.

"This hill is an exceptionally prominent landmark," said a utility district official. "The structure proposed by Dr. Morton would be visible from throughout the Briones Reservoir watershed, from San Pablo Dam Road and parts of the San Pablo Reservoir recreation area, from the El Toyonal district of Orinda and even from Inspiration Point next to Tilden Park."

The utility district directors voted last week to negotiate for the land, either through purchase or dedication as a gift, at the suggestion of Robert Mills and Joyce Hawkins of the Orinda Association. They said the association lacks funds to purchase the land, but hope EBMUD can acquire it as open space land.

The board decision was made over the protests of John Harnett, EBMUD general manager, who said it would be very difficult to justify the purchase on the engineering grounds of protecting the watershed from pollution and erosion.

However, a utility district spokesman noted this week the property does contain an unusual collection of chapparal plants and that acquisition could be justified on the basis of preserving and enlarging EBMUD's biology education reserve on the unnamed hill.

The Littlejohn property is adjacent to 65 acres of property which EBMUD bought for $1,200 per acre last year from the Cutter family estate. Harnett said he warned his board at the time that the Cutter property purchase "would cause everybody within range of Briones Reservoir to come in asking us to buy their land."

Unlike the Cutter property, the Littlejohn property lies within both EBMUD and the Central Contra Costa County Sanitary District and can be served by both with little trouble. This greatly increases the land value, officials said.

Best Friend on Stand

'Patty Seemed Disoriented'

By BILL BANCROFT

Patricia Hearst's best friend since the fourth grade testified in federal court today that Miss Hearst seemed "dazed" and "disoriented" the day after her arrest.

Patricia Tobin, daughter of the president of the Hibernia Bank that Miss Hearst is charged with robbing, took the stand as a defense witness to describe the tape-recorded conversation between the two young women Sept. 19 in the San Mateo County Jail.

They spoke over a telephone intercom, separated by a window, and Miss Tobin said her impression of Miss Hearst was that "her attitude and demeanor and speech were really different than before. She was rather slow, dazed, no animation. She droned on, sighed a lot and seemed disoriented."

When asked by defense attorney J. Albert Johnson about the defendant's appearance, Miss Tobin said "She looked terrible."

Although a transcript of the tape recording has been introduced as evidence, the tape itself has not been played for the jury.

Miss Tobin said she had never previously heard her friend say anything like the remarks on the tape, referring to Miss Hearst's comment that she wanted to make a statement about "feminine perspective and my politics are real different from way back when."

Miss Hearst did not have any political views, Miss Tobin said, and "we never discussed politics at all, and there was never any reference to feminism or any radical views" in their conversations before Miss Hearst's alleged abduction.

Her testimony supports the defense contention that Miss Hearst's jailhouse statement was made while she was still under the influence of, and in fear of, Emily Harris, who, with her husband, William, was arrested the same day as Miss Hearst.

Yesterday, near the end of the prosecution's case, the words of Donald DePreeze, the "General Field Marshall Cinque" of the so-called "Symbionese Liberation Army," were invoked to show that Miss Hearst willfully took part in the Hibernia robbery.

Dr. Harry L. Kozol, Boston psychiatrist, used the statements of "Cinque" to buttress his testimony.

Dr. Kozol made his statements on cross-examination by attorney F. Lee

Short-Lived Santa Fe Rail Strike

A system-wide strike of clerks that had effectively closed down the Santa Fe Railway ended at about 11 a.m. today but pickets at Santa Fe facilities in the Bay Area were still out just before noon.

Picket lines went up in the Bay Area about 4 a.m. at the Santa Fe yards in Richmond, the piggyback ramp and the sugar dock at Wharf Street in Richmond and the railroad's ferry slip at China Basin in San Francisco.

However, at about 11 a.m. Santa Fe officials here and in Chicago declared that the dispute with the Brotherhood of Railway and Airline Clerks had been tentatively settled, and that further talks would be held in the next few days.

Union officials promised to halt the picketing as "quickly as possible," according to a Santa Fe official in Chicago. He said the line probably would be back in full operation by late this afternoon.

Santa Fe has only freight operations in the Bay Area but one AMTRAK passenger train uses Santa Fe track from Port Chicago to Bakersfield.

Cop Accused In Drug Case

Former Emeryville police officer Dale Phillips has been charged with illegal destruction of narcotics.

He is accused of three misdemeanor counts of flushing narcotics down a toilet at the Emeryville police station instead of turning over the contraband substances to state authorities, as required by law.

The complaint was filed in Oakland Municipal Court yesterday by Deputy Dist. Atty. William Kleeman.

Phillips surrendered at the hail of justice today and was released on his own recognizance. He is scheduled to appear before Municipal Court Judge Roderick Duncan on March 29 for arraignment.

Phillips last year admitted he had

2 Named in Voting Case Surrender

EMERYVILLE—Florence A. Bigelow, 47, member of the Emery Unified school board, and James Fox, 18-year-old son of Mayor Wallace Fox, turned themselves in today. Both are charged with felony violations of state election laws.

Ms. Bigelow and Mr. Fox were brought to the Alameda County District Attorney's office by their attorney, James Giller, who said his clients "have no comment at this time."

They were immediately booked and fingerprinted and released on their own recognizance. They will appear next Tuesday at 10 a.m. in Oakland Municipal Court for arraignment—Mr. Fox before Judge Marie Collins and Ms. Bigelow before Judge Robert Friborg.

Charges were filed yesterday following a three-month investigation into voting and election irregularities here conducted by Deputy Dist. Atty. Ted Landswick and Inspector Kevin Kennedy.

Ms. Bigelow, acting as a deputy registrar of voters, is charged with one count of "falsely" registering an Emeryville businessman, using his business address for voting purposes when he actually lived in Oakland.

Mr. Fox is charged with eight felony violations of state election laws ranging from illegal registration of nonresidents to casting a ballot under a forged signature.

Ms. Bigelow, a member of the school board for the last 11 months, lives at the Watergate apartment complex, and Mr. Fox lives at 1236 54th St.

Clothes Make the Cop

ALBANY—What should your normal everyday undercover police officer wear?

City councilmen here think that a $101 leather coat may be a hit much.

Officer John Ford submitted a $118 claim to the city for damage to a pair of pants and a coat during the arrest of an armed robbery suspect—$15 for the pants, the remainder for the coat.

Mayor Michael Gleason suggested that officers might wear less expensive clothing.

"Perhaps they should all buy surplus field jackets so they will look like the rest of us," he said.

But the council approved the claim.

GOP Death Plot Called a Fake

WASHINGTON (AP)—A terrorist plot to kill President Ford and Ronald Reagan at the Republican National Convention this summer is known by government officials to be a fake, it was reported today.

The Washington Star said FBI officials knew, although they did not disclose it in public statements on the case yesterday, that the plot was a fake. The newspaper attributed the report to informed sources.

Meanwhile, the Los Angeles Times said a man arrested in a raid on a Richmond terrorist hideout told authorities Bay Area radicals made the assassination plans. The Times identified the man as Gregg D. Adornetto, 26.

The Times said Adornetto was arrested Feb. 21 with five others in the Richmond house where officers found 150 pounds of explosives, 85 blasting caps, an assembled bomb and timing devices.

The FBI said literature linking the six with a terrorist group known as the Emiliano Zapata Unit was also found in the house.

The Emiliano Zapata Unit has taken responsibility in recent months for bombing Safeway stores in Northern California. Authorities have said they know little about the group, including its size.

FBI Director Clarence Kelley said

Wilson Quits, Britain Reels

LONDON (AP)—In a surprise announcement that stunned Parliament and rocked the stock exchange, Prime Minister Harold Wilson said today he will resign as soon as Laborites in the House of Commons pick a new leader. Wilson, who turned 60 last Thursday, cited age as the reason.

A special meeting of Labor lawmakers was called for tonight to begin preparations for electing a successor. Mr. Wilson's resignation does not necessarily mean a general election is imminent, but his successor may wish to seek a fresh mandate from British voters when he or

Traffic Blues? Be a Girl-Watcher

WASHINGTON (AP)—Male drivers are much less impatient in slow-moving traffic when they have a pretty girl to look at, a government-financed study says.

Humor and pathos also help calm male drivers caught in hesitant traffic, the study concludes.

Those findings were cited today by Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., in singling out the $46,100 project as what he said was this month's "biggest or most ridiculous or most ironic example of government waste."

Sen. Proxmire said the study, financed by a National Science Foundation grant, was of "environmental determinants of human aggression." It was conducted by Dr. Robert A. Baron, then at Purdue University.

Sen. Proxmire said Baron's research involved having an assistant stop his car at a red light at a West Lafayette, Ind., intersection.

"When the light turned green, the assistant would refuse to move the car for about 15 seconds," said the senator.

"The purpose was to determine when and how often the driver behind would become impatient and aggressive enough to honk his horn," he added.

To discover the effect of environmental determinants such as sexual arousal, humor and empathy, the researchers had a young woman walk past the stalled motorists in a variety of costumes.

In some cases she wore "an extremely brief and revealing outfit." Sure enough, instead of honking their horns, male drivers tended to smile, stare, whistle and shout, the report said.

When the young woman wore a clown mask or "hobbled along on crutches and wore a bandage on her left leg," there also was less horn honking.

"While this piece of research may appear ridiculous to most American taxpayers," said Sen. Proxmire, "the National Science Foundation . . . must have had something like the following in mind:

"To reduce the tension and aggression of drivers caught in the middle of traffic jams in American cities, the foundation seems to tell us we should organize thousands of bikini-wearing young women, clowns and women with broken legs, to strut, dance and stagger across the streets at every busy intersection in every big city in every rush hour from now on."
