How jobless are hurting in California

read Business

No mercy for mercenary

see People

THURSDAY
MARCH 16, 1978
Price 20c

Oakland Tribune

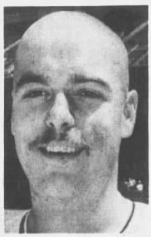
Serving the Growing Eastbay

A Combined Communications Newspaper

CLOSING STOCKS
GGF HANDICAP

Kuhn expected to OK Giants' deal for Blue

GARY ALEXANDER
A challenge for catcher



DAVE HEAVERLO
Relief pitcher

GARY THOMASSON
Competition in outfield

By TOM WEIR
Sports Writer

MESA, Ariz.—For the third time in his career Vida Blue has been traded by the Oakland A's, but this time the deal figures to stand up.

Blue was dealt today to the San Francisco Giants for an undisclosed amount of cash and seven players, all of them young.

The seven are outfielder Gary Thomasson, catcher Gary Alexander, pitchers Dave Heaverlo, John Johnson, Alan Wirth and Phil Huffman, and infielder Mario Guerrero or a player to be named later, depending upon which team you are talking to.

More on Blue trade, Page 31

The A's announcement, at 3:30 a.m., included Guerrero as the seventh player. But Giant General Manager Spec Richardson said "Guerrero is not a part of the deal at this time" and maintained the seventh player would not be named immediately.

Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn, who rejected two previous deals for Blue, will probably approve this one, it was reported in New York.

"We are reviewing the details," Kuhn said. "However, it appears to be in order, and I'm delighted to see Vida Blue given the opportunity to play for another club."

Blue, speaking in a drowsy voice, declined to comment on the deal when he was reached at his hotel here.

"I don't know," he said when asked if he is happy to escape Charlie Finley's payroll.

And asked whether he knew which San Francisco players were involved he said, "I don't want to know."

He said, "Don't bet on seeing me tomorrow," but he quashed any thought of jumping the club, as he did at the close of last year's spring training.

Continued Back Page, Col. 2

Tribune photo by RON RIESTERER

VIDA BLUE TO PITCH FOR GIANTS
A third deal is made for A's star

Italy's ex-premier seized; gunmen kill bodyguards

ROME (AP) — Former Premier Aldo Moro, considered Italy's most influential politician and probable next president, was kidnapped today by terrorists who killed all five of his bodyguards in a street ambush.

Telephone calls to the Italian news media said the abductors of the 61-year-old Christian Democrat leader were members of the Red Brigades, Italy's most feared urban guerrilla group.

President Carter sent a message of sympathy to President Giovanni Leone, saying: "This outrage deeply affects all of us."

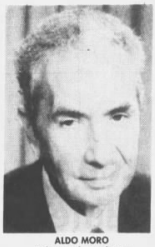
Police said 11 men and one woman firing submachine guns and pistols made the attack. Witnesses said some of the gunmen wore uniforms of the Italian air force band.

The government threw an estimated 50,000 police and army troops into the manhunt, and some time later police said they found the kidnap car, with bloodstains on a back door and the back seat.

They said they found a bullet inside with fragments of Moro's suit. But this did not mean Moro had been shot, police said, because there was no blood on the bullet.

The kidnappers had abandoned the car and transferred to another, and police said this second auto may have been spotted by a low-flying helicopter on Rome's outskirts. The crew reported seeing a car speeding down a country road with five persons inside, one of them held down on the floor.

Police converged on the area. Roadblocks were particularly tight between the city and Leonardo da Vinci Airport at Fiumicino, west of Rome.



ALDO MORO
Kidnapped near home

Fifteen leaders of the Red Brigades, a group police say numbers no more than several hundred, are on trial in Turin, and the organization has vowed to force cancellation of the trial by terrorist attacks.

The Italian news agency ANSA said it received a later call from another extremist group, the Armed Proletarian Groups, taking responsibility and threatening Moro's life. But police discounted this call.

President Giovanni Leone called the abduction "a challenge to the state" and said: "The state must give the firmest reply with every measure. We must adopt every necessary measure to counter this situation."

"We are at war," said Italy's

Continued Back Page, Col. 5

Israeli jets pound PLO

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Israeli warplanes swooped into southern Lebanon again today, aiming to knock out Palestinian artillery firing on Lebanese Christian villages in Israel's new six-mile-wide security strip along the border.

The Lebanese government, meanwhile, announced it would call for an emergency session of the U.N. Security Council.

Lebanese Prime Minister Selim el Hoss told reporters after a parliamentary session in Beirut that the government is preparing to call on the council to "take the necessary measures that would guarantee a cessation of the aggression and ensure withdrawal of Israeli forces."

More on Mideast, Page 12

In Cairo, Egyptian President Anwar Sadat condemned the Israeli attack and said he was watching closely "to make our plan."

Sadat told visiting African parliamentary leaders he would convene his national security council, which meets only in the time of crisis, to decide the next step. But he said he would continue the search for a peaceful solution.

"We thought we had reached a point when we were about to solve the whole problem peacefully and (then) Israel resorts to the use of force again," he said in his first public comment on the attack.

The jet fighters roared across Israel's northern border as the guerrilla shells crashed around roads leading to Marjayoun and Kleia, Lebanese communities held by Israel just beyond the frontier.

The Palestinians said the warplanes were striking hilltop positions from which the guerrillas were harassing the Israeli invaders, and that one plane was shot down and fell on the Israeli side of the border.

Continued Back Page, Col. 2

Thursday briefing

A summary of the major events of the day by Tribune news analysts.

Bay Area

Another Vida Blue trade . . . Vida Blue has been traded again, and this may be the first time the action will see him leave the Oakland A's. He won't go far, however — only across the bay to play for San Francisco. In exchange, the A's are getting seven players, all of them young. Page 1.

You don't have to be Irish . . . Oakland's St. Patrick's Day parade, one of the largest in the West, will be held tomorrow. True to its theme — "Ethnic Unity" — there will be groups representing the diverse nationalities and faiths of the Bay Area. Page 6.

Rail link proposed . . . The Brown administration yesterday disclosed plans to build a $5 million train link between San Francisco's Southern Pacific station and the BART Embarcadero station. Page 7.

Controversial firing dispute settled . . . Robert Bradfield, the fired University of California nutrition expert, will receive two years' back pay and reinstatement to his job for the next six months. And Bradfield will drop his charges of severe administrative harassment and racial discrimination against the university's Agricultural Extension Service. Page 2.

Political battle lines drawn . . . Local races for the Assembly and state judgeships in the June primary election will be hot campaigns as behind-the-scenes maneuvering begins. Page 16.

State

The push-pull of utility bills . . . In the year ending last June 30, the typical Californian was paying $2.08 more each month for utilities than he did the year before, according to the state Public Utilities Commission. That may seem like too much, but utility bills were rising at a worse rate elsewhere in the country. Page 13.

Nation

Strike settlement still uncertain . . . The fate of the proposed settlement of the long and bitter coal strike is still uncertain. The union bargaining council narrowly approved the proposal yesterday, but whether the miners themselves will follow suit is another question. Some members of the council fear another "no" vote by the membership. Page 14.

Billy Carter may face charges . . . President Carter's brother, Billy, and other politically well-connected Georgians are accused of unjustly receiving emergency gasoline allotments during gas shortages. Two congressmen yesterday called for an independent investigation into the allegations. Page 5.

World

Pressure on Israel increases . . . As Israeli planes swept over southern Lebanon again today, the Lebanese government announced it will call for an emergency meeting of the United Nations security council — and President Anwar Sadat of Egypt was convening his own national security council "to make our plan." He condemned the Israeli attack into its northern neighbor. Page 1.

Former Italian premier kidnapped . . . A band of kidnapers who may be members of Italy's most feared urban guerrillas snatched Aldo Moro, former premier, off the streets of Rome this morning, killing all five of his bodyguards. Police threw 50,000 security officers into the manhunt. Page 1.

the Human Angle

Two pals make the pipes hum

By RICK MALASPINA
Staff Writer

LODI—As a kid, Judd Walton would walk the mile between his home and the nearest theater with his fingers thrashing empty air and his voice humming and whirring from one octave to another.

"People who saw me on the street thought I was nuts," Walton reminisced. "I guess I still am."

Back then Walton was pretending to play the Mighty Wurlitzer pipe organ he had just heard at the movies. Today he pretends no longer.

Walton, 64, and his partner Bob Jacobus, 62, are pipe organ specialists. They play them, tune them, sell them, build them, repair them and install them.

"The first time I heard an organ was on my 12th birthday with my brand new crystal set," Walton said at St. Peter's Lutheran Church in Lodi, where he and Jacobus installed a $65,000 organ last week.

"I heard the Mighty Wurlitzer from the State Theater in Minneapolis, and I've been totally enthralled ever since."

Walton and Jacobus both live in Vallejo. But as representatives of the Wick Organ Co. of Highland, Ill., they cover a lot of ground—all of Northern California, Nevada and Hawaii.

Continued on Page 4, Col. 1

Index

Action Line	13	Comics	66	Television	64
Astrology	57	Crossword	56	Viewpoints	68
Automobiles	45	Entertainment	28	Weather	26
Bridge	59	Funeral Notices	26	Wonderworld	58
Business	40	People	61
Classified	50	Sports	31

Vol. 105-75 (5 Sections) FO

Sunny Friday